Democratic Ticket.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE,
JESSE S. WILLIAMS,

FOR STATE SENATOR,
JUDGE THOMAS C. CARSON,

A wise son maketh a glad father, but there is such a thing as getting too smart for the old man.

STRAWS show which way the wind blows. Good. Straws show which way the julep goes. Better.

It is said by some that Platt was the leader in the resignation movement, and that Conkling merely followed his satellite.

The railroad tax in Allen county is $2.08 per $100 valuation of property. The County Court have complied with the mandates of the U. S. Court and have been released.

SEVERAL Kentucky editors are going to do something for the sake of courtesy that they have hitherto refused to do for the good of their souls. They are going to read the New Testament.

Mrs. GARFIELD is now almost well and will go to her former home in Mentor, Ohio, next week. Mrs. Garfield is a pure, good woman, and the people are glad that her serious illness is past.

LORILLARD'S race-horse, "Lucky," won $2,000,000 at the great Derby race in England last week. He is the first American horse that has ever won the Derby.

HAVE you read the revised version? Not yet. Have you read the old? Never. This is the latest gag, and perhaps has a more general circulation than even the "hardly ever" of Plumtree.

We understand that Col. Johnston has inaugurated a system of pruning by which the professor will lose some of its valuable members in the shape of tummies and hangovers of various characters. This, if carried out thus roughly and unspuriously, can not fail to prove very beneficial to the boutique members and agreeable to the people, and especially to citizens where the Association convenes.

CONKLING's vote for Senator is gradually falling off. He began with thirty-four votes and now has twenty-six. The falling is likely to continue until the time for adjournment, when they will go home and leave New York without a Senator.

The alleged wits of the Kentucky press are racking their stuporous brains to find out words beginning with "Em" and attributing qualities, real or imaginary, to them. If the aforesaid alleged wits will take a big dictionary and, in somnambulic time, they can rig out three or four hundred of these elmerized females and not perpetrate anything desperately sharp at that.

THOMAS G. POORE, of Clinton, Hickman county, Ky., candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, subject to the action of the Democratic party, was in town on Monday last. He had the opportunity, which he happily utilized, of meeting with Democrats from all parts of the country. He is a genial, clever gentleman, of fine qualifications for the office, has for a number of years been clerk of the Circuit Court of his county and since 1875 has been Clerk of the Kentucky House of Representatives. He made a fine impression here and judging from the expressions we have heard, the man who beats Tom Poore in Ohio county will have to get a large number of votes. A man of integrity, a faithful and efficient officer, he deserves well of the people of Kentucky.

Kentucky Press Association.

COL. J. STODDARD JOHNSTON, the President of the Kentucky Press Association, has announced that the meeting of the Association, which was to have taken place at Somerset, Ky., in this month, has been indefinitely postponed. Under the circumstances this move was quite proper, as a holding of the meeting in the latter part of June would not be pleasant on account of the warm weather, and for other reasons.

We understand that Col. Johnston has inaugurated a system of pruning by which the professor will lose some of its valuable members in the shape of tummies and hangovers of various characters. This, if carried out thus roughly and unspuriously, can not fail to prove very beneficial to the boutique members and agreeable to the people, and especially to citizens where the Association convenes.

What We Must Need.

Our readers may think we are tedious or a little over-sensuous about the matter, but for all that we intend to continue pointing away on the question of a new State Constitution until the election, and we request and advise our exchanges throughout the State to do the same.

We are at least half a century behind the age in the way of a constitution, and if the constitution, which is, or should be, the beginning and foundation of all law, is antiquated, what then must we expect of the laws themselves? Those who seem to know say the resolution is wholly inadequate.

The pay of miners is to be reduced from 75 to 62½ cents per ton for mining coal, on the 15th inst. Notices to that effect have been posted, and dissatisfaction is beginning to show itself all along the line. Those who seem to know say the reduction is wholly inadequate.

A CHUBBY has recently been found in Butler county, which is ahead of anything we have ever heard of. It was found by Mr. J. H. Gatty and is in the shape of a child's foot with a shoe on it. The outlines of the shoe are said to be very perfect, and the pattern is very much after that of the present day.

W. C. CALHOUN, Malone's man, has been nominated for Governor of Virginia. He is what has been known in that State as a Conservative Republican, and is now a Readjuster. He is in no way related to Simon or Don, is a dandified editor, reporter, poet, novelist and politician, and will in all probability be Governor.

THE law for the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors is rigidly enforced in Kansas. A man was recently fined one hundred dollars and costs for selling a bottle of Hostetter's Bitters. This is pretty tight, but nothing like as tight as those old toper's who get if they were to get a good white-wash.

As another instance we may refer to the whole of Art. X., which refers to slaves and their owners, and which contains the following monstrous proposition:

"Sec. 2. The General Assembly shall pass laws providing that any free negro or mulatto hereafter immigrating to, and any slave hereafter emancipated in and returning to, this State, or having left shall return and settle with the State, shall be deemed guilty of felony, and punished by confinement in the penitentiary thereof."

In the "Bill of Rights" is found the following:

"The right of property is before and higher than any constitutional provision; and the right of the owner of a slave to such slave, and his interest, is the same and as inviolable as the right of the owner of any property whatever."

Another thing that demands attention is the present manner of securing a revision or renewal of the constitution. By the method now in force it is very difficult—in fact not very remote removed from impossible—to bring about a change, and if the voters of the State do not give it their attention we shall never see any but the present worn-out, dilapidated charter of our rights. While it is very well to guard the race, or ill the office if elected, but in the event should it be thought best after consultation, and a nomination reflecting the wishes of all the representative Democrats of the county were tendered him, he would not feel at liberty to decline, but only in such an event would he accept. He said he could not feel otherwise than complimented by the confidence of his fellow-citizens in this manifestation of their confidence in his ability and efficiency, but if the gentleman would withdraw his name from before the convention he would act in accordance with his wishes, as he did not wish the nomination.

The vote was then taken and resulted as follows:

that the law is so constructed that such an over-riding of Justice as has been indulged in by our present otherwise excellent Governor cannot hereafter be repeated.

We shall be allowed to vote on the question at the next State election, and it is the duty of every voter to give expression to his sentiments in regard to justice and progress by casting his vote in the affirmative. Should a majority of all the voters in the State fail to vote for the calling of a convention we shall be compelled to wait for another legislature to order an election and then two years longer for the people to take action, possibly with the same result as heretofore. Is not your conviction that we need a new constitution, and will you not work and vote for the same?

Dr. PATTERSON made a statement to the effect that he had from some rumor felt aggrieved at his friend, Mr. Barrett, in a moment of anger had spoken improperly. He had investigated the matter and, finding that the rumor he had heard was wholly unfounded, he retracted anything he might have said while laboring under false impressions and regarded and esteemed Mr. Barrett as a gentleman and his personal friend.

Judge O'Flaherty offered the following, viz:

WHEREAS, The counties of Butler and Muhlenberg have instructed their delegates to vote as a unit in the Senatorial convention;

Resolved, That Oldham county instruct her delegates in convention now as Senator to cast in a united vote in said Senatorial convention.

Judge O'Flaherty arose to a point of order. He said this convention was called for a specific purpose and could not go outside of the purposes of the call. Further, that a call of the committee of this county had convened voting precinct meetings in this county directing them to send delegates to the Senatorial convention which had been done and this convention had no power to interfere. The chair allowed debate, although not according to parliamentary usages, because he said he desired to act intelligently in deciding. After considerable discussion he decided the motion out of order.

Hon. R. P. Hoeker moved to proceed to appoint and instruct delegates to the Senatorial convention, which was to convene immediately after the adjournment of the hall first, which was declined and the county convention proceeded by the selection of Judge Henry Newton, chairman, and John P. Barrett secretary.

Moved and adopted that the chair appoint a committee of five on credentials and representation. W. F. Gregory, Dr. N. J. Rihs, T. J. Smith, Dr. S. A. Jackson and J. H. Harper were appointed.

The committee retired to make their report, and during the interim Hon. Thos. G. Poore, of Hickman county, was called for and responded in a very appropriate little speech announcing his candidacy for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, which was deservedly applauded.

Judge S. P. Love, of Muhlenberg, was called for and replied by saying he was not accustomed to political speaking, but offered some very practical suggestions.

The Committee on Credentials and Representation reported as follows, and the report was unanimously adopted:

The Committee on Credentials and Representation respectfully report the previous vote and list of delegates for each of the following:

Fordsville, 5 votes, H. V. Wells, H. F. Wallace, Dr. Sanders, J. L. Burton, Ellis, 5 votes, H. Whitedy, Jesse McTaylor, J. W. Moseley, James Miller, Sam Greer.

Bardgett's, 5 votes, J. S. Taylor, H. Chapman, W. E. Townsend, T. J. Smith, T. W. Stewart, Wm. W. Hart.

Bardgett's, 5 votes, E. V. Klinchey, W. W. Warden, Wm. W. Wade, Alfred Ashby, W. H. Fullerton, and all Delegates.

Centertown, 5 votes, E. V. Klinchey, W. W. Warden, Wm. W. Wade, Alfred Ashby, W. H. Fullerton, and all Delegates.

Rockport, 5 votes, W. D. Coleman, Zeb Shultz, Ted Baker, H. C. Warden, W. A. Burdette, S. A. Jackson, Jas. Gentry, Jas. T. Taylor.

Cromwell, 5 votes, J. Will Bennett, Jas. T. Tilford, S. L. Taylor, Jr., T. C. Parker, J. H. Harper, Jas. Gentry, M. Stowers, 1 vote.

Rutine, 5 votes, N. J. Rihs, Wm. Cannon, G. B. Vantom, J. H. Barnes, W. H. Alexander.

Sulphur Springs, 3 votes, H. F. Bean, F. L. Smith, Noble Bean, A. T. Hines, Jas. E. Hines, C. X. Bean.

Hartford, 10 votes, J. H. Bennett, J. C. Townsend, T. H. Hines, Jas. Flaherty, P. M. Hoeker, and all Delegates.

Beaver Dam, 3 votes, R. P. Hoeker, J. H. Mitchell, H. B. Taylor, Jas. T. Taylor, Jas. Gentry, Jas. T. Taylor.

In the above we have fixed on a basis of 1 vote for each 25 Democratic votes cast at the last Presidential election, and one for each fraction of 13 or more.

W. F. GREGORY, S. A. JACKSON, J. H. HARPER, T. J. SMITH, N. J. RIHS, Committees.

Moved and adopted that the delegates from Cromwell be authorized to cast the vote of Stewartsville precinct, it being unrepresented.

Judge A. B. Haldred asked that Jesse S. Williams and that he be selected as our nominee for Representative. J. H. Harper nominated Dr. B. N. Patterson, and C. W. Hussey nominated John P. Barrett, who in a few remarks stated he was not a candidate; had not been, had been solicited by quite a number of friends and had said response that of his own volition he would not be a candidate; that he did not suit his condition, physically or politically to make the race, or ill the office if elected, but in the event should it be thought best after consultation, and a nomination reflecting the wishes of all the representative Democrats of the county were tendered him, he would not feel at liberty to decline, but only in such an event would he accept.

He said he could not feel otherwise than complimented by the confidence of his fellow-citizens in this manifestation of their confidence in his ability and efficiency, but if the gentleman would withdraw his name from before the convention he would act in accordance with his wishes, as he did not wish the nomination.

The Committee on Resolutions reported as follows and the report was adopted:

Your resolution is respectfully submitted to the Senate, to be voted upon at the earliest convenient time.

Resolved, That we approve of the call of this convention to nominate a candidate for the State Senate, and that it is the duty of all good Democrats of this Senatorial District to support the same.

Resolved, That we hereby re-endorse the principles of the platform of the Democratic party and again pledge ourselves to stand by those principles until the flag of the party is carried to victory.

Resolved, That when there is division and discord among the leaders of the Republican party, it is the duty of the members to unite in the cause of the party.

—The Claytonian Society of Hartford College have invited the Trustees of Hartford to join the procession tomorrow night and occupy seats on the rostrum at the meeting of the Society to hear the address of Hon. E. C. Hulbert. The occasion was one of great interest, the parties being well known in the community and the choice of each of them is deservedly applauded. Give "longing" to the parlor at an early hour. All were assured of a hearty "welcome" by the warm reception given by the estimable host and hostess. Prompt to the hour the expectant assembled friends were rewarded by the advent of six little fairies. Misses May Mosley and Lizzie Moore in white tulle over blue silk; Misses Isabell McHenry and Katie Anderson in cream colored satin; Misses Gladie Mosley and Sissie Huntwick in airy white muslin; having joined hands they stepped lightly into the parlor, and with angelic grace bowed smilid and separated, scattering flowers, standing suffiently far apart to admit the bride and groom. The ceremony was performed in that easy, impressive manner so characteristic of Dr. W. P. Bennett, prayer by Rev. J. S. McDonald. Congratulations, heartfelt and sincere, were extended to the happy pair. Breakfast was then announced. The dining hall was especially tastefully decorated with evergreens and sweet bouquets of rare flowers. The arrangement of the tables was superb and such a repast as it was baffle all description. From the first to the very last course everything was delicious. The effect of all this was charming, and together with the sweet fragrance of flowers the remaining few minutes sped on the wings of ethereal lightness, and it was with many a deep sigh for the briefness of the hour that the company had to say "good-bye" to the bride who was starting to her new home, taking with her the good wishes of all and quite a number of handsome presents.

To the Young Men.

Probably not one in a hundred can do any one thing thoroughly. They can all dig away at "anything that comes handy," but us for excelling in any trade, business, art or profession, that is utterly out of the question.

One of these young men calls upon us; perhaps he is a graduate of some college, has his diploma, and plenty of recommendations from clergymen and members of Congress. We ask him what he can do. He is not particular—can turn his hand to most anything. We give him a trial, and then he cannot write a decent hand, nor spell or punctuate correctly, nor write with any degree of rapidity, nor read a strange manuscript, nor do anything whatever with promptness and judgment, which is requisite in business.

He has no knowledge on any subject; has simply a jumbled mass of information, which may be sound or otherwise, and which he can not turn to any practical account. He has been all his life reading about how things are done, instead of learning to do them.

This is wrong. Young men should reduce their education to practice as they go along. They should learn to do. Should study less, practice or work more; read less and think more, than instead of being useless, superficial, imbecile, automata, they may become thorough, practical, executive men, capable of doing what they undertake to the last degree of perfection, and with a vigor and rapidity in keeping with the characteristics of the age.

Changes in the Frog.

Nowhere in the animal kingdom is there so favorable an opportunity for peeping into nature's workshop as in the metamorphosis of the frog. This animal is a worm when it comes from the egg, and remains such the first four days of its life, having neither eyes, ears, nostrils nor respiratory organs. It crawls; it breathes through the skin. After a while a head is grown into the flesh; its soft lips are hardened into a horny beak; the different organs, one after another, bud out; then a pair of branching gills, and last, a long and limber tail. The worm has become a fish. Three or four more days elapse, and the gills sink back into the body, while in their place others come, much more complex, arranged in vascular tufts, one hundred and twelve in each. But they, too, have had their day, and are absorbed—together with their framework of bone and cartilage—to be succeeded by an entirely different breathing apparatus, the initial of a second correlated group of radical changes. Lungs are developed, the mouth is widened, the horny beak is converted into rows of teeth, the stomach, the abdomen and the intestines are fitted for the reception of animal food in place of vegetable. Four limbs, fully equipped with hip and shoulder bones, nerves and blood vessels, push out through the skin, while the tail, being now supplanted by these new means of locomotion, is carried away piecemeal by the absorbers, and the animal passes the balance of his days as an air-breathing and test-feeling batrachian.

CROUCHERS ON THE CRISIS.

How the Political Sensation Struck the Pendulous Portion of the Country.

The night before last the Utica Croquet Club, composed entirely of young ladies, held its second meeting for the season of 1881. Two new members were admitted, and proposals for membership were made. The committee on resolutions made their expected report. The resolutions were written on scented paper, and penned with violet ink. After the business of the evening had been finished, the young ladies sitting on the ottoman suddenly exclaimed:

"Oh, my! Girls, did you hear about Crook?"

"No. What is it?" said the four misses on the settee in one breath.

"Why, he's resigned!"

"Resigned to what? Has he been dangerously sick?" said the secretary.

"No, no! Can't you understand? He has given up his Senatorship."

"Goodness gracious! Ain't that queer?"

"How much did he get for it?" quoth the girl with the album in her lap.

"Why, you silly things, you ought to read the newspapers. Senator Conkling got dissatisfied with something in Washington, and resigned his office into the hands of Gov. Cornell. There was a misunderstanding between him and the President about some man named Robt.—Robt.—Robt.—Let me see, Robt.—No, that ain't it. Oh, yes—Robt.—Dear sir! They say the whole country is in a crisis!"

"I read all about that," said the President of the Club, knowingly. "Senator Conkling and this Robertson had some kind of a fuss, while they were trying a lawsuit. Come to think, Mr. Conkling wanted to give him some instructions, and Robertson wouldn't have it. Then the President appointed Robertson to collect money in some ward in New York City!"

"That wasn't it," interrupted the first speaker. "The President told Mr. Robertson to stand at some lock—a dead-lock they call it—and see that the canal captains paid their tolls. The man who was put out of a job by Mr. Robertson getting the situation used to go to school with Mr. Conkling."

"What I want to know," said a young lady, "is how could the President order these men around so? Didn't I read in a paper, the other day, that Mr. Conkling was the boss?"

"My sakes! That's funny," ejaculated the Secretary; "I heard my brother say it was a man named Blaine, who came here from Canada, and wanted to run the whole country, who caused the disturbance. The President made this Blaine a present of a cabinet, orange, and then he never stopped begging until he got a whole set of furniture too. That made the other men who did not get my thing jealous."

"What were the guns firing for today?" asked the girls on the settee.

"You see, the Senate helped Robertson to get his job," answered the first speaker, "and the half breeds were so glad they borrowed some emmons!"

"Who are the half breeds? Indians?"

"I am not sure, but I don't think they are. They just have come here when the canal opened."

"Girls, exclaimed the President, of the meeting, "do you know I think that firing was a real battle? I read in the paper this week about the War on the President." Isn't it awful?"

"And I say, How the bold struck!"

"Oh, those horrid half breeds," ejaculated five voices at once.

"Yes," continued the President, "and I believe they are going to be commanded by that man, Malone, who came to Washington with a red shirt on and tried to scare everybody."

"I am going home," faintly said the Secretary.

"Let us all go," said the girls on the settee.

"Oh, I hope we won't meet any half breeds," Utter Observer.

All women should exercise their wisdom in this way."—New Haven Patriot.

A VERY SERIOUS JOKE.

The Trick Which One Baltimore Girl Played on Another.

(Baltimore American.) A couple of young girls living in a boarding house on Charles street played a mean trick the other night on another young and attractive maiden in the same house. They all had some cake and wine together, and in the unsleeping one's glass was poured a small portion of tincture of aspirinum, which every one knows, smells like a conglomeration of onions, bad eggs, decayed vegetables and a host of other things too numerous to mention.

The prank playing damsels knew that the unhappy maid Charles Augustus called on Sunday, and they also knew that while she could not detect the flavor of the aspirinum in the fragrant wine, nevertheless it would produce to her aforesaid Charles Augustus the impression that she had been eating onions by the peck. Poor pretty, little unsleeping thing! She was radiant when she flew to the door and admitted the many form of the object of her heart's affections; and she did not observe, as they were locked in a close embrace, as her lips met hers, drawing a drupe in the neck of her neck, that a look of wild, unutterable horror spread over his features a dusky pallor.

He cut the embrace short, and they went and took their places on the cosy tete-a-tete in the corner. Then she noticed there was a far-off, troubled look in his eyes, and he shifted about uneasily, as if vaguely aware that something was the matter, but that he couldn't detect the odor, which resembled the smell of the onions he had eaten the day before yesterday's fried onions, and which was lingering dreamily around on the soft, warm air.

"Dear!" she asked, slyly, "what is the matter?"

"Nothing, sweetheart, nothing; that is, nothing," answered he, as his gaze flew swiftly from one object to another.

"But there must be," said she, leaning forward. "You are not yourself tonight. Tell me darling," and she tried to gaze into his face, while he dodged her with a look in his eyes like that of a wild beast.

"My love, you are not well," she said, anxiously, as she wound her arm about his neck, and drew his head about until the latter quivered.

"Itut, dearest, you seemed all right when you came in," she persisted, lovingly; and then she sighed again, and he jumped like a goaded mule and kicked over a little table.

"I know I did," said he, nervously picking up the poker and absently putting it in his east-tall pocket. "I know I did, but I'm awful bad now. I'm afraid I'll have to go," he continued, as she leaned over toward him again. "I think I'm going to have the yellow fever."

"Grandmama, Charley," said she, "can it be possible that you are ill?"

"Yes, the poker through his hair in an ill-directed, agitated manner. "Good night, darling. Don't kiss me," he continued, shuddering, "you might take the fatal scourge," and he burst out of the door and disappeared.

The young girl, as she wandered distressed and musing out of the room, next tackled a gruff old bargee, who in pretty strong language, convinced her of the fact that she had been eating onions, and she discovered the joke by asking the girls who had played the trick on her, in an agonizing tone of voice, if their breath was really perceptible. They exploded with lit-timed levity and told her all. She says now she will never have anything to do with them as long as she lives, and as for Charles Augustus as well."

A Little Noise.

They were at a dinner party, and he remarked that he supposed she was fond of etiologics. She said she was, but she was not very well, and the doctor had told her not to eat anything for dessert but oranges.

"Maggie, dear, why could I not get beyond the first syllable?" Maggie gave it up, whereupon William said: "Because when I come to e, of course I cannot go farther." Maggie said she thought that was the neatest conundrum she had ever heard.

"My sakes! That's funny," ejaculated the Secretary; "I heard my brother say it was a man named Blaine, who came here from Canada, and wanted to run the whole country, who caused the disturbance. The President made this Blaine a present of a cabinet, orange, and then he never stopped begging until he got a whole set of furniture too. That made the other men who did not get my thing jealous."

A little miss has a grandfather who has taught her to open and shut his mouth. The other day, however, he came with an ordinary silk one. I've had to sit on it, but I can't get it more than half shut."—Utter Observer.

Woman's Wisdom.

"She insists that it is more important that her family shall be kept in full health than that she should have all the fashionable dresses and styles of the times. She therefore sees to it, that each member of her family is supplied with enough Hop Bitters, at the first appearance of any symptoms of any ill health, to prevent a fit of sickness with its attendant expense, care and anxiety. All women should exercise their wisdom in this way."—New Haven Patriot.
